

CUBS-YANKEES IN WORLD SERIES--HOLY COW

It's 1988 and the Chicago Cubs are three outs away from defeating the New York Yankees and winning their first World Series in 80 years.

The Cubs' fate is up to rookie pitcher Rocky Malone--that is 38-year old pitcher Rocky Malone. The bases are loaded with no outs and the Cubs' holding a 2-1 lead. Malone must face the Yankees' best two hitters, who are also his best two friends. Holy Cow is a baseball fiction book written by Jerry Miles and will be available in mid-November. Pre-orders may be made by sending $12 or check payable to Jerry Miles (includes postage and handling) to P.O. Box 8545, La Verne, CA 91750.

Miles will have the book for sale in the EASTON booth #4 at the BCA convention.
